Report Content

The income section is organized by asset class, jurisdiction and currency. The income that is included in the report is that with a value date (date when the cash was received in your account) within the reporting period and has been categorized following general market standards. Please note, however, that such classification may differ from your local tax requirements. Income that is not a dividend nor an interest income is reported as Other Income. We recommend that these figures are reviewed by your Tax Advisor/Accountant. For this purpose, we have provided the details of income at the security level to facilitate such reviews.

The transaction section is organized by asset class, jurisdiction and currency. Transactions reported are those with a trade date (date when the trade was executed) in the reporting period. Security transactions are based on their trade date. Transaction or security qualifications do not follow any jurisdiction-specific tax laws, regulations or practices.

Private equity transactions are reported with a trade date within the reporting period in a separate section. Private equity transaction qualification is performed based on information received by JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. from external sources. Hence, JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. cannot be held responsible for any incomplete or inaccurate information in reference to Private Equity.

Certain transactions involving hedge funds may be included in this report based on the date upon which the transaction was inputted into our system rather than the trade date.

Security Prices and FX Rates

The security prices indicated in this report correspond to the actual prices as at the time of the relevant transactions. For unlisted securities, it is possible that only provisional market values or prices were considered for this report or that no market values/prices were available at all at the time that this report was created. Therefore, if required, the market values/prices figures indicated should be verified before using the information provided in this report. Amounts reflected in this report have been converted into the reporting currency using the FX rate sourced from Thomson Reuters at 6:00 p.m. Central European Time, between the position currency and the reporting currency as at the value date of the income transactions and at the trade date of the security and private equity transactions.
